The novels Huckleberry Finn, and Robinson Crusoe, contain the discernible theme of freedom. Freedom is the state of being free or at liberty. In the novel Huckleberry Finn, the main character Huckleberry Finn is with Jim, a runaway slave. Jim wants freedom and that is why he is trying to make it to “Cairo” in the north to become free. Jim said “it made him all over trembly and feverish to be so close to freedom...” (Twain 85). This represents how much humans desire and yearn to be free.
